

1990

The Greek Revival house, on the corner of Seneca and Charles Streets in Dresden was once the southwest portion of the Dresden Hotel, an enormous and then-symmetrical building that served as the village's social center.