The Chairman read the recommendations of the Torrey Planning Board dated October 21, 2013. The planning board determined that this application is not substantial and recommends application be approved.

Mr. Earle stated the reason he needs signage is that his place of business is actually 3 businesses now. He has a winery-Torrey Ridge, a meadery - Earle Estates and newest business Warthog Cidery. As the wine industry grows and competition is great, he felt compelled to go into a new direction to prosper. The additional signage is to attract new customers.

There was no one to speak in support or opposition to this area variance application.

Pat asked if a sign has been removed. Mr. Earle had appeared before the board in September regarding an issue with his signs and area variance requested.

Mr. Earle has three signs that were grandfathered Torrey Ridge, Earle Estates and Redneck Wines, as they were installed prior to the adoption of the new 2011 Zoning Law. Unaware of the zoning law change, this spring he added a fourth sign for the Warthog Cidery. He will remove one of the original signs grandfathered and replace it with the Warthog Cidery. He is requesting that he be allowed to add a 5 foot stringer at the bottom of one sign.

There being no further statements or questions, Chairman thanked Mr. Earle, stating that the board would make decisions at the regular monthly meeting for his time and went on to the next application at 7:16 PM.
